

MEET YOUR EXPERT PANEL

Oscar Chavez, assistant director at Sonoma County Department of Human Services and past E.D. for Community Action Programs, frequently speaks on the importance of diversity awareness on productivity, morale and development. He has served on several community boards and has an avid interest sharing the effects of diversity training on productivity in organizations.

José Guillén is an organizational development consultant with extensive skills in administration, coaching, conflict resolution and cross-cultural communication. He has in-depth training in understanding and dealing with implicit bias. A veteran Court Administrator, José frequently consults on these topics with legal system officials domestically and in Latin American countries.

Maureen Merrill is a communication trainer, workshop facilitator and productivity coach, long active in business and community benefit organizations. Bringing high energy to her work, Maureen combines her graduate training in psychology with her business and professional experience toward raising profits, effectiveness and morale for individuals and teams.

Passionate about diversity awareness, Kerry Rego integrates the related skills into her communication and technology training activities. Known in the north bay and beyond as a high-profile expert in social media and social trends, Kerry is a lecturer at Sonoma State University and adjunct faculty at Santa Rosa Junior College. She has a special interest in expanding awareness of differences in workplace teams and interpersonal communication.